

Kwanza Jones And José E. Feliciano Bio (Long Version)

Kwanza Jones and José E. Feliciano are life and business partners. In 2014, they founded the Kwanza Jones & José E. Feliciano Initiative (Jones•Feliciano), a private family office stewarding long-horizon capital across sports, media, private markets, and mission-aligned platforms.

Guided by a commitment to purpose-driven initiatives, they invest in and partner with nonprofits and for-profits with a key focus on four pillars – education, entrepreneurship, equity, and empowerment. Believing that access to capital drives inclusive opportunity, Jones and Feliciano have committed nearly $500 million to these efforts.

In addition to being Co-Founder and CEO of Jones•Feliciano, Kwanza Jones is an investor, entrepreneur, and philanthropist working at the intersection of culture, community, and capital. She builds platforms that combine capital, media, and community to drive measurable impact, expand audience engagement, and support long-term growth.

José E. Feliciano is Co-Founder and Managing Partner of Clearlake Capital. He is on the board of directors of Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, Stanford Board of Trustees, the Smithsonian National Museum of the American Latino, J. Paul Getty Trust, and LA28, the 2028 Olympic and Paralympic Games in Los Angeles, reflecting his commitment to education and cultural advancement.

Leveraging their legacy of innovation, collaboration, and SUPERCHARGED® energy, Jones and Feliciano aim to boost communities and empower humanity.
